In my letter of Tuesday night I mentioned the rescue from the hands of two detective officers, by virtue of a varrant issued by Recorder Bernard, of T. S. Jones, the detailting clerk of the Colchester Bunk, Connecticut. The proceeding was considered rather high-handed, and caused considerable comment not altogether compilmentary to the parties concerned in the rescue. It appears that the warrant which was made to supersole a requisition from the governor of the State was issued on a charge referred by Mr. Lehand, of the Metropolitan Hotel, of obtaining $1,000 by false protences. Under this latter warrant the accused was held to bail in $1,900, and the examination of the case was fixed for this morning at the recorder's chamber. The room was densely crowded with all sorts of people from an early hour, who evidently expected exciting proceedings, and they were certainly not disappointed. Ex-Judge Whiting stated that dones had been arrested under a warrant issued by Recorder Smith on a requisition duly signed recorder Smith on a requisition duly signed overnor King. Beconder Barnard declared this warvold by lapse of time. Mr. Whiting then produced unsition signed by Governor Morgan, and asked the ake the arrest under the requisition, and announced his roose to capture Jones on his own responsibility, when recorder immediately said that he would arrest and indicted within twenty minutes whoever attempted on anything of the kind. The excitement was now at leighth. Recorders, lawyers, ex-indges, policemen, rters, and populace stood up and vocilerated at the , and the court-room presented the appearance ing-tent at an Irish fair more than that of a jua drinking-tent at an Irish fair more than that of a ju-cial tribunal. A row seemed inevitable, when the sher-arrived, and by taking Jones into custedy on the gov-nor's requisition appeased the combatants, and restored apparative order and decency. The further examina-on was postponed till to morrow morning. The speech of Senator Thompson, of Kentucky, against he acquisition of Cuba is not considered admirable for te, however remarkable it may be f-r aughter may be a very creditable achievement at a din-tributer to the Stump, but in the Senate of the nited States, discussing a grave question of policy, roars of laughter do not constitute the most desirable becies of applause. The opinion is very widely enter-dued, that those who hold popular trusts, and oppose the acquisition of Cuba, will laugh the wrong side of roker mouths when they ask their constituents for a re-read of their frests.

The ecclesiastical council which has been in session for me days examining the complaints of several members the Church of the Puritans, of which the abolition cher, Dr. Cheever, is the pastor, who seceded from reacher, Dr. Cheever, is the pastor, who secreted from at Chunch in consequence of their conscientions objectons to the Doctor's preaching, and to whom the usual tters of dismissal were refused, rendered their decision—day in favor of the complainants, and ordering their will secretary to issue the required letters, in case Dr. beever persists in his refusal. The case has caused neiderable stir in religious circles, and the decision has liven general estimate them.

Prof. Cook took up the subject of nitrogen. It was not a supporter either of combustion or of animal life; and yet it was by no means the inert negative body that these qual-lifies would seem to prove it. Its principal characteristic was the number and importance of the compound which it forms, especially with oxygen. The most prominent of these was mirie acid, usually known as aqua-fortis, which contains five atoms of oxygen to one of nitrogen It was a strong oxydizing agent; and this he illustrated by pouring the acid upon charcoal and turpentine, each of which it ignited. He next described the process by substance called gun cotton. He also treated of am-monia and cyanogen, illustrating the properties of each

The ly edibles, both the choicest confections and the more solid attraction of a substantial supper, and, more than all, the beaming faces of the fair ladies who have undertaken the good work, render the entertainment really inviting. But, apart from these considerations, the fact that the proceeds are to be appropriated to the support of an institution which, while it shelters and educates a large number of friendless children, subsists only on the benevolence of the charitable, commends it to the patronage of the discerning public.
